

Individual Rights

Data Protection Legislation provides individuals with 8 rights. Below is an overview of the 8 individual rights. You can find out more information on the Information Commissioner's website www.ico.org.uk

The Right to Erasure (to be forgotten). Individuals can request the deletion or removal of personal data where there is no compelling reason for its continued processing.

The Right to Rectification. Individuals are entitled to have personal data rectified if it is inaccurate or incomplete.

The Right to Restrict Processing. Individuals have a right to 'block' or suppress the processing of their personal data.

The Right to Data Portability. This allows individuals to obtain and reuse their personal data for their own purposes across different services.

The Right to Object. Individuals can object to the processing of their personal data; including direct marketing and profiling.

The Right to be Informed. This encompasses an individual's right to be provided with 'fair processing information', typically through a privacy notice.

The Right of Access. This allows individuals to access their personal data.

Automated decision making and profiling. Individuals can request not to be subject to a decision when it is based on automated processing and produces a legal effect or similarly significant effect on the individual.