DESCRIPTION

- 01 From Nebo Road (B5427), with the cemetery on your left take an immediate left turn along a track/green lane. This track can get wet and muddy after a heavy rainfall. Follow this track through a gate (for 0.6 miles) until you reach a closed gate. Go through the gate (you will see another gate and a track to your left) to veer right and join a lane. * Look out for wildflowers growing in these hedgerows, such as red campion, herb robert, greater stitchwort, wild garlic, meadow sweet and bluebells. Species rich hedgerows such as these act as great corridors for wildlife to move along. You can find lots of nuts along the path in autumn, such as hazel nuts, acorns and beech masts.
- 02 At a junction, follow the road around to the left (not following the footpath signs). At the next junction keep right to continue up a small hill to a gate on your right to Garth yr Hwylbren.

03 Go through this gate to follow the track past the farm buildings, keep left through a gate and continue up to a gate and a road.

05 Go through the gate into the woodland to follow the track down and around to the right. Go through another gate, past farm buildings to turn left over a small bridge (before another gate and a house.) Continue straight across the field to emerge on a lane. * The dappled shade created by the woodland makes a great habitat for the speckled wood butterfly.

07 Turn right onto the drive from Cyffdy. Continue along the drive to Nebo Road. Turn right here to return to the start of the walk. Take care when walking along country lanes. * This 'park land' area is typical habitat for little owls. They are Britain's smallest owl and like to nest in holes in old trees.
