What is Child to Parent Carer Abuse?

Child to parent/carer abuse is serious and harmful. Evidence from an evaluation conducted across Conwy suggested that this is increasing. This is a form of abuse that is seen perpetrated against mothers, fathers, siblings and grandparents; therefore it is a whole family issue. This is a complex form of family abuse that can happen due to many challenging and harmful issues. Evidence suggests that this can impact on the safety and well-being of the whole family.

Parents/carers who experience this form of abuse explain that they feel isolated, ashamed, stigmatised and extremely concerned about the impact of this form of harm on the whole family.

This form of abuse can happen to any parent/carer irrespective of gender, race, culture, nationality, religion, sexuality, disability, age, class, or educational level. Abuse is not about a child/young person 'getting angry' or 'out of control'. This form of abuse is about power and control that threatens, coerces and dominates the parent/carer and often the whole family. This abuse can take many forms, including physical, emotional, psychological, verbal or financial abuse. It is normal for parents/carers who experience this form of abuse to feel alone, isolated, shamed, humiliated, in denial, fearful, concerned and anxious about losing their relationship/bond with their child.

What is the focus of this intervention?

This intervention toolkit was developed in partnership with professional agencies across Conwy. This toolkit was developed as a response to increasing number of families across Conwy experiencing this form of abuse within their family home. The main aim of this toolkit is to:

- Reduce incidents of child to parent/carer abuse
- Improve positive outcomes for the whole family in a safe manner
- Raise awareness of child to parent/carer abuse
- Increase family safety within the family homes of those experiencing this form of abuse
- Offer strategies to address this form of abuse as a whole family issue
- Reduce the stigma and shame associated with this form of abuse
- Promote positive relationships within families
- Offer a multi-agency and clear pathway for screening, assessing and addressing this issue.

This toolkit can be adapted to be used on a one-to-one basis with parent/ carer and the children displaying this form of abuse or as a group work programme. The key practitioner leading on delivering the intervention will make contact with the parent/carer in advance to prepare in advance of the first session in a safe manner. The Traffic Lights Screening Tool (TLST) and the Traffic Lights Assessment Tool (TLAT) will be completed prior to the first intervention session.

This toolkit applies an approach focused on a strength based practice for the whole family, which includes a focus on well-being, compassion, restorative justice and respect.

Who does the programme work with?

These interventions can be offered and delivered to parent/carers and to children who display this form of abuse. To be suitable for this form of intervention, children and young people must be aged 12 to 17 and there will have been a pattern of abusive behaviour over a period of at least six months.

Ideally both parent/carer and child will attend the intervention sessions/ group work, however the toolkit will work with either. These interventions can be used with female/male, parents/carer or children.

What does the programme involve?

The intervention toolkit consists of interventions sessions which will be facilitated by two key practitioners. These sessions can be delivered on a one-to-one or a group work basis. A key ethos of the toolkit is well-being, reducing shame and stigma and improving family safety. The sessions delivered to parent/carers and young people can run in parallel, in particular if the focus is on the whole family.

Participation as part of this interventions toolkit is voluntary and should not be enforced. This toolkit is underpinned by an ethos focused on promoting positive well-being in a safe, compassionate, non-judgemental, and anti-oppressive manner.
