Domestic Abuse

Coed Pella,
Conway Road,
Colwyn Bay.
LL29 7AZ

What is Domestic Abuse?

Domestic abuse is when the behaviour of someone close to you causes you harm. Domestic abuse can be physical, psychological, emotional, sexual or financial.

Domestic abuse is when someone in a close relationship with you behaves in a way that causes you physical, mental, or emotional damage. This doesn't have to be physical violence.

Domestic abuse includes threatening behaviour.

Domestic abusers are usually a person's spouse, partner, ex- partner or other close family member. Most people affected by domestic abuse are women, but many men are abused by their partners.

How do I know if I am in an abusive relationship?

Your Inner thoughts and feelings. Do you?

Feel afraid of your partner much of the time?

Avoid certain topics out of fear of angering your partner?

Believe that you deserve to be hurt or mistreated?

Wonder if you're the one who is crazy?

Feel emotionally numb or helpless?

Your Partners Belittling Behaviour. Does he/she?

Humiliate or yell at you?

Criticise you and put you down?

Treat you so badly that you're embarrassed for your friends or family to see?

Ignore or put down your opinions or accomplishments?

Blame you for their own abusive behaviour?

See you as property or a sex object, rather than as a person?

What are the signs of mental or emotional abuse?

Your Partners violent behaviour or threats. Do you?

Have a bad and unpredictable temper?

Hurt you, or threaten to hurt or kill you?

Threaten to take your children away or harm them?

Threaten to commit suicide if you leave?

Force you to have sex?

Destroy your belongings?

Your Partners controlling behaviour. Does he/she?

Act excessively jealous and possessive?

Control where you go or what you do?

Keep you from seeing your friends or family?

Limit your access to money, the phone, or the car?

Constantly check up on you

Many men and women suffer from emotional abuse, which is no less destructive. Unfortunately, emotional abuse is often minimized or overlooked—even by the person being abused.

Emotional abuse chips away at your feelings of self-worth and independence. If you're the victim of emotional abuse, you may feel that there is no way out of the relationship, or that without your abusive partner you have nothing.

You may think that physical abuse is far worse than emotional abuse, since physical violence can send you to the hospital and leave you with scars. The scars of emotional abuse are very real, though, and they run deep. In fact, emotional abuse can be just as damaging as physical abuse—sometimes even more so.

It is still abuse if....

The incidents of physical abuse seem minor when compared to those you have read about, seen on the TV or heard other women / men talk about. There isn't a "better" or "worse" form of physical abuse; you can be severely injured as a result of being pushed, for example.

The incidents of physical abuse only occurred one or two times in the relationship. Studies indicate that if your partner has injured you once, it is likely they will continue to physically assault you.

The physical assault stopped when you became passive and gave up your right to express yourself as you desire, to move about freely and see others, and to make decisions. It is not a victory if you have to give up your rights as a person and a partner in exchange for not being assaulted.

There has not been any physical abuse. Many women and men are emotionally and verbally abused. This can be as equally frightening and is often more confusing to try and understand.

Who can experience Abuse?

Domestic abuse and violence can happen in straight, lesbian, gay or bi-sexual relationships. You can be affected by domestic abuse from a partner or family member.

Physical attacks are the most obvious signs of domestic violence. They don't need to leave visible marks to be damaging.

What are the signs of mental or emotional abuse?

Mental abuse attacks your personality and emotional well-being. Mental abuse is not as obvious as physical abuse but can be just as harmful. It can include:

- Humiliation or constant criticism
- Verbal abuse and name calling
- Enforced isolation from family and friends
- Threats against you or others you are close to
- The destruction of belongings
- Control over what you wear and how you look

What are the signs of financial abuse?

When your partner deprives you of financial independence. For example where one partner is the wage earner and the other looks after children, the wage earner does not give the carer enough to meet everyone's needs.

An abuser's goal is to control you, and he or she will frequently use money to do so.

- Controlling your finances
- Withholding money or credit cards
- Making you account for every penny you spend
- Withholding basic necessities (food, clothes, medication)
- Restricting you to an allowance
- Preventing you from working or choosing your own career
- Sabotaging your work (making you miss calls, calling work constantly)
- Stealing from you or taking your money

Should I tell my children about my plans?

Younger children may not be good at keeping secrets whereas older children may cope better with the information. You will not lose your rights as a parent if you have to leave your children, but you must see a solicitor as soon as possible so you can take steps to get them back.

What if I want to stay in my home?

You can take legal action to allow you to stay in your home and keep out the person abusing you. The courts can do this by way of an 'Occupation Order' which says who has the right to live in your home. They may also grant a 'Non Molestation Order' which sets out the way your partner must behave in the future and stops them threatening and harassing you.

Please note that you must seek independent legal advice as Conwy Housing Solutions cannot do this for you. Details of all available support services can be found on www.welshwomensaid.org.uk
