

Fact Sheet

Harassment

If you are experiencing harassment it is important to take steps before considering leaving your current home.

Coed Pella,
Conway Road,
Colwyn Bay.
LL29 7AZ

What is harassment?

Harassment is any behaviour that is seen as offensive or which is intended to disturb or upset you. Harassment from your landlord includes:

- Withholding keys
- Withdrawal of services, such as electricity
- Failure to carry out repairs
- Threats or physical violence from the landlord or someone acting on their behalf
- Unannounced visits to the property
- Letting themselves into the property without consent
- Won't let you live in your home in peace
- Acts in a way that is meant for you to leave your home
- tries to take away your legal rights as a tenant
- Opens mail
- Removes your belongings
- Sends workman to the property without prior notice or during unsociable hours (unless an emergency)
- Illegal eviction

What can I do if I am being harassed?

- Make sure to report any incidents to the Police.
- Also report incidents to your Landlord.
- If your Landlord is a Local Authority or a Housing Association they usually have policies to deal with Anti-Social Behaviour and Harassment
- Keep records – ask your landlord to put all communication in writing
- Put all communication to your landlord in writing and keep copies – these can include diary, notes on a calendar, photos and videos
- Get an injunction – you will need to seek the help of a solicitor or advisor.

How can you help?

The Private Sector Housing Officer can offer you help and advice

- Interfere with the peace and comfort of a tenant or anyone living with them
- Persistently withdraw or withhold services for which the tenant has a reasonable need to live in the premises
- A person who is convicted by magistrates of an offence under the Act may have to pay a fine of up to £5000, or be sent to prison for 6

The Protection from Eviction Act 1977 makes it an offence to:

If the Private Sector Housing Officer and/or the Homeless Prevention Officer confirm you are unable to return to your home, you may be offered temporary accommodation, depending on your individual circumstances

If you are experiencing harassment from an ex-partner, it is important to report it to the Police. (See leaflet on Domestic Abuse for further advice.)

If you are experiencing racial harassment you should report this to the Police. If the Police can confirm if it is unsafe for you to remain at your current home, then we may be able to offer you temporary accommodation.

If the Homeless Prevention Team does not have a duty to provide accommodation for you, we will give you advice on how to secure alternative, affordable accommodation and signpost you to any other agencies that may be able to help you.
