CELEBRATING NATIONAL READ A BOOK DAY

September 6 is National Read a Book Day!

What will you be reading? We want to know!

Email us at digital.library@gov.uk with the title and author of the book you will be reading on September 6.

We will be collating a celebration wall on Facebook, featuring all of your current reads to commemorate one of our favourite days of the year.

BACK TO SCHOOL

The summer holidays are over and many children are going back to school...

Coronavirus: A Book For Children is available to download for free. It talks about the virus on a level that children can understand easier, and may prove useful for educating your children about the virus before going back to school!

Coping With Coronavirus is a guide on staying calm and protecting your mental health that may prove useful for parents.

Reading Well: Dementia

Our Reading Well: Dementia collection can provide help, support and insight into not only what Dementia is, but also what it's like for a person with Dementia, and how we can be mindful and helpful toward them.

You can order these books via the online catalogue, or through our call and collect service.

#RECLAIMHERNAME

Twenty-five iconic novels are republished under the authors' TRUE identities. The Reclaim Her Name campaign features novels that were originally published by women who were using male pen names. These books are now available as free digital ebooks, featuring all new cover art to celebrate the writer's true identity.

The titles include 'Middlemarch', a true classic published under the pseudonym George Eliot, Mary Ann Evans' name proudly sits on the republished cover.

You can browse and download the full collection here.
